17th November 2023

Even though it is still November, as we are putting on our Christmas performance earlier in December (due to the tides), the children have now been given their parts for our musical. This year we are performing 'Midwife Crisis' which is a funny but sweet Christmas story told from a different point of view and with catchy songs. In the meantime, we are still carrying on with our usual curriculum. The children have learned a song about Samuel Pepys in music which links brilliantly with our learning theme of London (the Great Fire of London) and the focus on Samuel Pepys in Commando Joe's this term.

In science, the children have been learning about electricity and identifying dangers around using electricity as well as how electricity can be used in different ways - such as electric gates at a dairy farm.

We are very excited to welcome Professor Brainstorm into school on Monday. He will be delivering a magical science show in the morning where the children will get the chance to get involved and explore a range of scientific qualities of materials as well as investigate electricity. In the afternoon he will do a workshop around a mission to Mars thinking about rockets, the surface of mars and what astronauts wear and eat. We hope this will be an inspiring and fun STEM day for the children.

Year 4 transition

Lowick Year 4 children had their first year 4 transition meet up this week at Ford forest for an afternoon of forest skills with year 4 children from other local first schools. Miss Hay went along with them and they had a great time with a range of activities such as making bird feeders, wood crafts and hot chocolate around the fire.
